1. ANDERSON, Andrew A. Twenty-Five Years In A Waggon. Sport and Travel in South Africa. London: Chapman and Hall, 1888. New edition in One Volume. (so stated). Tall 8vo., orig. green cloth, (xiv), (424), 40pp. ads dated "April 1889." With a folding map and illustrations. Inscription on halftitle, inner hinges cracked but o/w a near fine copy. "...Mr. Anderson's book is almost unique of its kind. The author has undoubtedly a long and intimate acquaintance with those portions of the Dark Continent he so well describes..." $400
2. ANDERSSON, Charles John. The Okavango River. New York: Harper & Brothers, 1861. First U.S. edition. Tall 8vo., orig. green cloth with a small gilt pictorial decoration of a rhinoceros on the upper board, (xx), (21)-414, (2)pp. ads. With a folding map in colour and also with engravings. Some scattered foxing, cloth a bit rubbed but o/w a better than very good but not quite near fine copy. $650
3. ARNOT, Fred S. Garenganze; Or, Seven Years' Pioneer Mission Work In Central Africa. London: James E. Hawkins, nd. (1889). Second edition. Tall 8vo., orig. green cloth, (xii), 276pp. With illustrations and a folding map at rear. Inner hinges cracked, spine slightly faded with some rubbing, a very good copy. Frederick Stanley Arnot (1858-1914) Scottish missionary who worked to establish missions in what are now Angola, Zambia and the Democratic Republic of Congo. This is an account of his work in the Congo and of the tribal chief, Msiri, who ruled a large area in Katanga Province. While Msiri was resistant to the idea of conversion, he did allow Arnot to build a mission with a church, school, clinic and orphanage. $300
4. ARNOT, Frederick Stanley. Garenganze; Or, Seven Years' Pioneer Mission Work in Central Africa. With Introduction by Dr. A. T. Pierson. Containing Twenty Illustrations and a Map prepared by the Royal Geographical Society. London: James E. Hawkins... nd. (189-?) Third edition, so stated. Tall 8vo., orig. cloth backed pictorial paper boards, (xiv), 276pp. With a folding map at the rear. A bit of scattered foxing, some light wear to the corners but in fact a near fine copy. $225
5. BAKER, Samuel W. Ismailia. A Narrative of the Expedition to Central Africa for the Suppression of the Slave Trade. Organized Ismail, Khedive of Egypt. London: Macmillan & Co., 1874. In two volumes. First edition. Tall 8vo., orig. green with pictorial decoration in gilt on the upper covers and spines, viii, 447, 55pp. ads dated "October 1874"; viii, 588pp. With 50 plates and two maps in colour, including one folding. There is a two-inch tear in the folding map (no loss), bookplates, spines slightly cocked with some wear to the ends, but certainly a very good copy. Himly I p.49 "In 1869, at the request of the khedive Ismail, Baker undertook the command of a military expedition to the equatorial regions of the Nile, with the object of suppressing the slave-trade there and opening the way to commerce and civilization. Before starting from Cairo with a force of 1700 Egyptian troops, many of them discharged convicts, he was given" the rank of pasha and major-general in the Ottoman army. Lady Baker, as before, accompanied him. The khedive appointed him Governor-General of the new territory of Ekuatoria for four years at a salary of £10,000 a year; and it was not until the expiration of that time that Baker returned to Cairo, leaving his work to be carried on by the new governor, Colonel Charles George Gordon. He had to contend with innumerable difficulties—the blocking of the river in the Sudd, the bitter hostility of officials interested in the slave-trade, the armed opposition of the natives—but he succeeded in planting in the new territory the foundations upon which others could build up an administration. He returned to England with his wife in 1874... He published his narrative of the central African expedition under the title of Ismailia (1874).” $1,000

6. BALLIF, Noel. Dancers of God. Translated from the French by James Cameron. London: Sidgwick & Jackson, (1955). First edition in English. Cloth, 213pp. Illustrated. Fine in d/w. The author's account of making three documentary films about the pygmies of central Africa which provides a detailed description of the manners, customs and way of life of the different tribes. $75
7. BIGELOW, Poultney. White Man's Africa. Illustrated by R. Caton Woodville and From Photographs. New York: Harper & Brothers, 1898. First edition. Tall 8vo., orig. beige cloth with a pictorial panel on the upper board, xvi, 271pp. With illustrations. Name, a few pages opened carelessly (no loss or chips), slight rubbing o/w a near fine copy. Covering the area of Africa stretching northwestward from the Cape of Good Hope for about 1,000 miles running along the Indian Ocean and examines the effects of colonization. $150
8. BROWN, A. Samler (editor). The South and East African Year Book & Guide With Atlas and Diagrams. Edited Anually by... For the Union Castle Mail Steamship Company... 1935 Edition. London: Sampson Low, Marston & Co., 1935. 8vo., orig. drab green cloth stamped in dark blue, lxvi, 1130, 64pp. of maps, 110pp. ads. Fine. $225
9. BROWNE, W. G. Travels in Africa, Egypt, And Syria, From the Year 1792 to 1798. London: Printed for T. Cadell and W. Davies... 1806. Second edition, enlarged. 4to., cont. leather, (xxxvi), 632pp. With 3 folding maps, 1 plate and frontis. This copy has been professionally rebacked, bookplate o/w a nice copy. Educated at Oxford, George William Browne (1768-1813) was pursuing a career in law until "his thoughts were diverted by reading Bruce's travels and the first report of the African Association, and he resolved to devote himself to the exploration of Africa." He arrived at Alexandria in 1792, and after two months' residence, proceeded westward along the coast to visit the ruins at Siwah. He subsequently spent time in Cairo, studying Arabic and investigating the political and social condition of the country, and visited the principal remains of Egyptian antiquity, at that time little known to Europeans. He was prevented entry into Nubia, so he set about exploring the vast Roman quarries at Cosseir on the Red Sea, which he explored in the disguise of an oriental. Browne

then decided to accompany the great Soudan caravan to Darfur, a country not previously described by any European, from which he hoped to penetrate into Abyssinia. After encountering great hardships, he reached Darfur in 1793, only to become ill with dysentery, be robbed of all his possessions and then be detained by the Sultan. Finally, the Sultan released him and Browne returned with the caravan in 1796, having gained much information, particularly on the course of the Nile. Browne journeyed through Syria and through Asia Minor to Constantinople and returned to England in 1798. Browne published an account of his travels in the above work, first issued in 1800. From 1800-1802 Browne traveled in the Levant and Turkey. In 1812 he set out to explore the Tartary by way of Persia. Traveling through Asia Minor and visiting Armenia, he proceeded safely as far as Tabriz, which he left towards the end of the summer of 1813. According to one of the servants accompanying him, Browne was murdered by bandits a few days out of Tabriz. Browne's body was not recovered and there remained doubts about accounts of his death. $3,500

10. BRUCE, James. Travels To Discover the Source of the Nile, In the Years 1768, 1769, 1770, 1771, 1772 & 1773. ...To Which Is Prefixed A Life Of The Author. Edinburgh: Printed by James Ballantyne For Archibald Constable and Co., ... 1805. In seven volumes, plus one volume of plates. Second edition, corrected and enlarged. Tall 8vo., recently rebacked with dark brown half calf (after the period) and corners, retaining the contemporary marble boards, gilt and blindstamped compartments. With portrait frontispiece, 79 plates and 3 large folding maps. Large folding maps a bit foxed with professional reinforcements of the folds on the verso, boards rubbed but still a near fine set. James Bruce (1730-1794), Scottish explorer in Africa. After journeying through Barbary and the Levant, Bruce arrived at Alexandria in June 1768 resolved to endeavour to discover the source of the Nile. His Travels was issued in 1790, after he retired to his home at Kinnaird, at the urging of his friend Daines Barrington. It was published in five octavo volumes, lavishly illustrated. The work was popular, but was ridiculed by scholars and other travellers as being exaggerated nonsense. However, the substantial accuracy of every statement concerning his Abyssinian travels has since been amply demonstrated. (11th Brit). $4,500
11. BRYK, Felix. Voodoo-Eros. Ethnological Studies in the Sex-Life of the African Aborigines. Translated from the German by Mayne F. Sexton. New York: United Book Guild, 1964. A revised edition of Voodoo-Eros which is a translation of Negro-Eros. 8vo., cloth, 251pp. Illustrated. White spine a bit soiled o/w a nice copy. $75
12. BURCKHARDT, J. L. (Johann Ludwig). Travels In Nubia. London: Association for Promoting the Discovery of the Interior Pars of Africa/ John Murray, 1819. First edition. 4to., recently rebound in brown half calf, marble boards, raised bands, blind stamped compartments, leather labels, xcii, 543pp. With a frontispiece portrait of the author and 3 engraved maps (2 of which are folding). Some foxing to the maps otherwise a fine copy. Ibrahim-Himlay p. 105,

Blackmer 238 (second edition). Johann Ludwig Burckhardt, (1784-1817), "the first European in modern times to visit the ancient city of Petra and to arrive at the great Egyptian temple at Abu Simbel (or Abu Sunbul). Burckhardt went to England in 1806 and studied in London and at Cambridge University. In 1809, under the auspices of the Association for Promoting the Discovery of the Interior Parts of Africa, he visited Syria to learn Arabic and to accustom himself to Muslim life. According to instructions from the London association, he was then to journey to the regions south of the Sahara, via Fezzan, now the southwestern sector of Libya. In 1812, en route from Syria to Cairo, he discovered the important archaeological site at Petra, in modern Jordan. Upon his arrival in Cairo he found no immediate prospect for a reliable caravan to Fezzan; hence he decided to travel up the Nile. In so doing he discovered the temple at Abu Simbel, generally thought to be among the most imposing of all rock temples. Next he traveled through Arabia, visiting Mecca. He then returned to Cairo where he died, still waiting for a chance to cross the Sahara. Burckhardt, who took a Muslim name and often wore Muslim dress, left his large collection of Arabic manuscripts to Cambridge University. "His writings include Travels in Nubia (1819), Travels in Syria and the Holy Land (1822), and Travels in Arabia (1829). (Ency. Brit.)

This copy has been professionally rebacked, some reinforcement to the inner hinges but o/w a better than very good, unworn copy. Abbey 347, Mendelssohn I, 908. David Livingstone (1813-1873) Scottish missionary and explorer in Africa. Livingstone set off from Cape Town in 1852 working his way north where he was cordially received by Sekeletu and his people in the Makololo. Men were selected by Sekeletu to accompany Livingstone with a view to open up a trade route between their own country and the west coast. Livingstone was plagued by fever, semi-starvation and dysentery. From Loanda he sent his astronomical observations to Sir Thomas Maclear at the Cape and an account of his journey to the Royal Geographical Society. He reached Lake Dilolo in 1855 and made a careful study of the hydrography of the country. The route to the west proved unavailable and Livingstone opted to follow the Zambezi to its mouth. He discovered the famous "Victoria" falls of the Zambezi and completed a 2 1/2 year journey. "The results in geography and in natural science in all its departments were abundant and accurate; his observations necessitated a reconstruction of the map of Central Africa. When Livingstone began his work in Africa the map was a blank from Kuruman to Timbaktu, and nothing by envy or ignorance can throw any doubt on the originality of his discoveries." (11th Brit). $2,000
